A WORD FROM THE EDITOR

France is about to embark on an unprecedented period of hosting important international sporting events. From the Alpine Skiing World Championships in Courchevel Méribel in 2023, via the France 2023 Rugby World Cup and the Paris 2024 Olympic and Paralympic Games, French destinations are set to serve as the arena for major sporting competitions and a whole host of fun and festive occasions.

Naturally, by virtue of the positive impact they are going to have, these events constitute a magnificent opportunity for the country. They are a symbol of unity and openness to the world, and a powerful driver of change and innovation in multiple domains : taking action on sustainability, supporting training and jobs, respecting and protecting the environment, promoting inclusivity.

On the tourism front, they are an opportunity to enhance both France's attractiveness as a destination and the quality of the reception we give our guests, to promote the savoir-faire of the country's event management professionals and to optimize the economic boost generated by inviting international visitors to extend their stay with us.

In conjunction with the organizing boards of these major events and the host regions, Atout France is going to work to ensure that a lasting legacy is built. The Agency's teams will seek to ensure that the promotion of French excellence and of the appeal of the regions involved, for tourists, are conveyed loud and clear to international audiences. These large-scale events constitute a real invitation to go on a journey, to come and discover (or perhaps rediscover) France, its cultural and natural legacy, to come and share its art de vivre and gastronomical delights, and to create connections with the French people. In 2023, the Rugby World Cup will bring 600,000 visitors to France and be broadcast in 209 countries, making it a showcase for our lifestyle, our regions and our terroirs.

This eagerly anticipated event will also enable us to bring customers from more distant parts of the world back to the country too, as the fervour for hotel bookings attests. Atout France is also going to offer key players in French tourism special resources enabling them to improve visitors' experience while they are over here.

We are overjoyed at the idea of building a lasting legacy, of hosting the world, and of sharing France, our creativity, our audaciousness ; in short, our French flair!

CONTENTS

The 2023 Rugby World Cup will take place in France between 8 September and 28 October. The tournament's 48 matches will be played out in nine stadiums, spread among ten host cities (Lille, Lyon, Saint-Étienne, Nice, Marseilles, Toulouse, Bordeaux, Nantes, Paris and Saint-Denis) and the 600,000 international visitors expected will be able to enjoy some wonderful socialising, centred around one big, 52-day party.

France is set to host the 10th edition of the Rugby World Cup, exactly 200 years after the sport was invented. For it was in 1823 that William Webb-Ellis, a schoolboy at Rugby School in England, did something that was 'against the rules' of football, by picking up the ball in his hands and running with it.

More than a sporting event, it's a matter of wanting to build an event that is different from the rest. Different in the same way that rugby itself is different : it is a sport that derives its strength from solidarity, sharing, acceptance of differences, self-denial, collective commitment and respect.

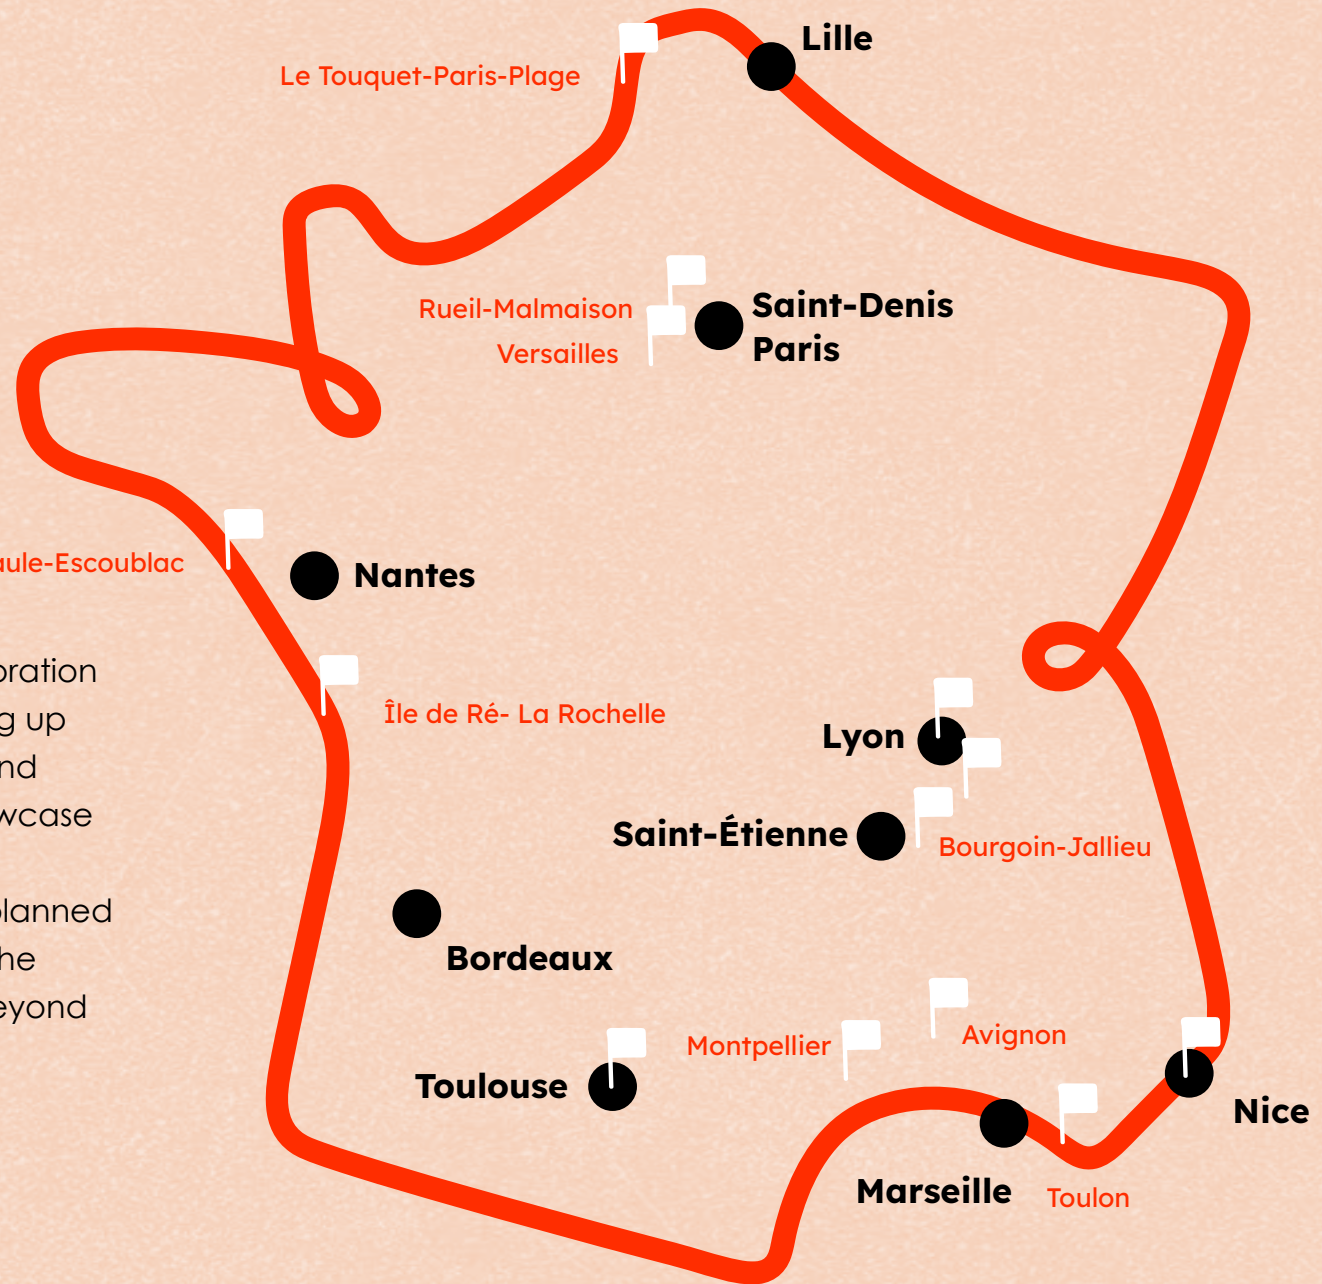

The 2023 Rugby World Cup will go beyond the confines of sport. It will resonate at societal level, throughout all the regions and on all the nation's pitches.

Atout France, the Regional Tourist Boards and Tourist Offices of the territories and host venues are working together to offer international fans a stay that will be as thrilling off the pitch as it is on it.

● 10 host cities and numerous base camps

As we look forward to this huge celebration of rugby, the cities of France are lining up to display their own unique appeal and advantages ; they will serve as a showcase for this country's cultural legacy. An exceptional welcome has been planned for the fans and teams from all over the world, so as to take this World Cup beyond the bounds of the rugby pitches.

PRE-MATCH

The beer getaway

Here's a themed activity that's a cross between a game and an initiation ceremony, to discover the craft beers of northern France while making your way through the charming alleyways of Old Lille. It's a zythological quest that will see you discovering specialist bars, micro-breweries and high-end establishments from the world of craft beer. On this tour, visitors can drink in the ancestral know-how passed down the generations, which is the pride of northerners.

The Bataille de Fromelles Museum

5 matches will take place in Lille during the Rugby World Cup. To mark the occasion, the Bataille de Fromelles Museum invites you to a temporary exhibition on rugby players and their role during the First World War. "The game for which they had been preparing for so many years"; so read a front-page headline from The Times in 1919, as rugby paid a heavy sacrifice during the great war. The exhibition explores a wide range of themes associated with this painful period and the sport with the oval ball : anecdotes, little snippets from history never told before and indeed biographies of the rugby players who saw action in the field of battle. From July 2023 to February 2024.

Guided tour of Lille on tandems

Discover Lille on authentic tandem bicycles (known in French as vélos hollandais, 'Dutch bikes') that are as attractive and flowery as Amsterdam itself. The bike tour takes around two hours and offers some wonderful time-out in which to discover the main sites of Lille and its History, centred around the topic of 'Lille by the seaside'. A cycling guide will accompany you and share some of their favourite spots and hidden gems in the city. The route takes in 10 stages, and between each of them you'll have the benefit of getting some exercise in the open air.

EXTRA TIME

Bierbuik

A Flemish masculine noun meaning Beer-belly. That says it all - or almost... The younger brother of the Auberge du Vert Mont and the Bloempot chose to be located in the heart of Old Lille, at 19 rue Royale. This social hub, with its cool and festive ambience, was the brainchild of chef Florent Ladeyn, together with his cousin Clément Dubrulle, the chef at Vert Mont, and Kevin Rolland, a childhood friend.

The aim is to give people the opportunity to enjoy a delicious, healthy, locally produced meal both day and night (till midnight or beyond) for ten euros, drink included. Le Bierbuik is a next-generation dining spot, a social hub that's accessible thanks to its stripped-back, approachable cuisine featuring a wood-fire oven. Also on the menu are beers that the three co-owners created themselves. Chefs' beers with original, quirky and ephemeral based on local produce...

Grand Scène

Grand Scène ('Big Stage') is Lille's temple of street-food, located right in the heart of the city. At a site spread over 1600m² and two floors, the establishment offers an eclectic home-grown menu at an affordable price, has 2 bars and can host up to 800 people, with seating for 400. Scattered around the communal tables are ten restaurants run by chefs from the region and offering top-class cuisine that is a blend of diversity and locally produced food and wine. French pizzas, mezzes to share, gourmet burgers, vegetarian halloumi hot-dogs, Greek souvlaki, cakes for grown-ups and kids alike...More than a restaurant, it's a centre for lifestyle and culture and has its own performance venue that organises events all year round. There's something to please everyone's palette and visitors will enjoy a pleasurable dining experience among friends. Ideally situated near rail stations, public transport links and car parks, the establishment is open from Monday to Sunday, except on Sunday evenings.

GETAWAY

HAUTS-DE-FRANCE

A FRANK CAMARADERIE

Ideally situated between Lille and Paris, the Hauts-de-France region is known for its buzzing social scene and the warm welcome you'll get from the locals. This is a region where the tempo of life slows, to make way for original activities, taking place in a way that suits everyone's pace, tastes and desires.

Let yourself marvel at an intensely creative cultural offering that is always kept fresh and updated, slow art, sensory tours, new museums and lots of other original artistic initiatives. The region also has 6 magnificent cathedrals and several UNESCO world heritage sites. When it comes to historical tourism, there are numerous sites that bear witness to the events of the First World War ; the best-known of them are the Thiepval memorial, the 'Anneau de la Mémoire'

(Ring of Remembrance) and the Sir John Monash Centre.

The region also offers an abundance of ways to get out into the country when there's a break between matches : 5 Regional Natural Parks, 2 Major Sites of France - Baie de Somme, Deux-Caps and soon the Dunes of Flanders, with 200km of coastline and 100,000 hectares of state-owned forests (known as forêts domaniales).

This is a region of fine food and drink and a festive atmosphere, where people enjoy healthy, high-quality food that's lovingly prepared. In 2023, the region is going to become the first region of France to earn the title 'European Gastronomical Region'.

→ More info

European Gastronomical Region

The recipes in Hauts-de-France are flavoursome, generously-portioned and eclectic, with the region's chefs making the most of the variety and character found in produce from the land and sea. The locally-grown produce is exceptionally fresh and tasty : enjoy strong cheeses, award-winning beers, apples and pears from local orchards, carrots from Tilques, cauliflowers from Saint-Omer, beetroots, garlic from Locon, linden honey, chicory buds, maroilles cheese from Thiérache, the keeping cheese tomme au foin, craft beers and a local variety of brioche called gâteau battu.

Playing host to the England team will be the exceptional thermal spa resort of Le Touquet-Paris-Plage. This charming village on the coast of Opale is a genuine paradise for those who love wide open spaces and a bit of sea air.

→ Discover Le Touquet-Paris-Plage

A region of history, resilience and peace

The Hauts-de-France is a region that hands down universal values of peace through the sharing of remembrance and the expression of a brotherhood that knows no bounds or borders. This region is also a key witness to the history of France : one could almost say that the French soul was forged on this land. The French language itself was officially instituted here, in Villers-Cotterêts, back in 1539. From châteaux to palaces, from cathedrals to bellfries, from Art Déco to the Flemish style, some beautiful and remarkable discoveries await those who take the time to come and admire them. The charm of the region is also to be found in meeting new people, enjoying shared occasions and discovering the festivities at one of the braderies (flea markets combined with live entertainment and food stalls), réderies (also a flea market, otherwise known as a vide grenier - literally an 'attic emptier') or other carnivals.

A big breath of fresh air

The coast of Hauts-de-France beckons you to go for a peaceful roam in the open air : you'll find magnificent beaches and cliffs, seals and a wild natural landscape that stretches for almost 200km between Bray Dunes and Mers les bains. The Baie de Somme, one of the most beautiful bays in the world, is a must-see thanks to its décor - typical of the area - and its unforgettable landscapes. Finally, the region is a paradise for unwinding and opening your mind : after a spot of kite-surfing, sailing or hiking, visitors can enjoy some soothing treatments at a health centre or spa.

Lyon

An historic and gastronomic conquest

With a history stretching back over 2000 years, an exceptional cultural legacy and several districts classed as UNESCO world heritage sites, Lyon is a city where there is History around every corner.

To discover the city in the best possible way, several types of trip are on offer for visitors : travel by segway, e-bike, boat... The main thing is to take your time and enjoy a few chats with the locals, so as to discover the real spirit of Lyon.

Another feature of Lyon is the appeal it holds for foodies, offering up as it does all the culinary treasures provided by the neighbouring terroirs. When you're dining out, you can mix things up by visiting the famous Bouchons (bistros typical of the city), Michelin-starred establishments, or establishments run by innovative young chefs.

Food tour of Lyon

To enjoy the city from a culinary perspective, the Food Tour Lyonnais is a mix of tastings to savour and opportunities to meet dedicated producers and chefs over some local specialities. From Les Halles Paul Bocuse, a shrine to Lyonnaise gastronomy, visitors head out to explore Lyon's produce, amid an array of aromas, flavours and mouth-watering food stands. Try some Saint-Marcellin cheese, Rosette de Lyon cured sausage, a meat pie called pâté en croûte or a tarte à la praline (praline tart) to understand the passion of Lyon's best food producers and find out their food production secrets. For foodies who also like a bit of exercise, this food tour can be done by electric bike, too, so that you combine panoramic views from the hills, strolls beside the waterfront and tasting breaks along the length of the route.

Lyon, 2000 years of history

A UNESCO World Heritage site, Lyon has more than 2000 years of history to discover and offers a remarkable amount of diversity. The styles and buildings on show attest to the different eras the city has gone through : the ruins of Lugdunum and Roman theatres, Renaissance alleyways and houses in Vieux-Lyon (the Old Town), and the 19th century mansions of the prestigious Presqu'île (Peninsula). Lyon is a particularly good place to explore on foot, on a walking tour led by a guide and lecturer, who will be passionate about showing you the rich architectural and historic delights of the city they call home. During the tour, you'll wend your way down the traboules (short passages between two streets) to discover architectural details that will really knock you for six. For a full immersion in Lyon's culture, a trip to some of the 24 museums that retrace the city's history is an absolute must. The Musée Lumière, for instance, explores the lives of the Lumière brothers, who invented the cinema and hailed from Lyon.

Lyon from the water

The charm of the city really makes itself felt when you're on the riverbank. Lyon has both the Saône and the Rhône running through its heart, with the two rivers converging in the district known as Confluence. River cruises on electrically-powered boats offer a different and unexpected perspective on the city's cultural wealth, far from the hubbub of the big streets in the city-centre. For a romantic dinner on the water, the bateau-restaurant Hermès offers up-market cuisine made up of fresh, seasonal produce. The most sporty visitors can rent a canoe or paddle-board to take in that special light that you get along the riverbanks.

Saint-Étienne

An inspiring hub of creativity

Saint-Étienne is the only French city to have been awarded a UNESCO Design label. The city has a creative quarter and a Design City inside a former munitions factory that has now become an exhibition space and site of cultural innovations.

Another powerful draw in this creative city is the fact that it is Europe's biggest Le Corbusier site : there are several buildings designed by the French architectural genius here.

Beyond their love of creativity, the Stéphanois (as the locals are known) are sport-lovers at heart and make no secret of their love of a certain sport that involves a round ball.

While the Rugby World Cup is on, though, their mania for sporting competition will certainly make itself felt in the stadiums and in the city!

Design workshops for all

Saint-Étienne is best explored through workshop experiences : head for the Design Cabin in the heart of the Design City, open to children and adults alike who want to have a go themselves. For those with a real appetite, head to the Weiss Workshops, the place to get Haut Chocolat® since 1882. At these workshops, everyone can become a master chocolatier by designing their own bar of design chocolate. And on the refreshment front, Benjamin and Pierre-Luc, two friends with a passion for making beer, have created the Brasserie Stéphanoise. There you'll discover high-quality products, short distribution cycles and local partners : a fine blend of values. To top off your trip and understand the stéphanois mindset, spend some time with one of the city's 'greeters' during a stroll around the city or out in the country - a fun time awaits you.

The genius of Le Corbusier

A 'city within a city', this is the mad brainchild of the visionary architect Le Corbusier. A stone's throw from Saint-Étienne, the Le Corbusier site in the middle of Firminy-vert has some treats in store for both connoisseurs and the curious : a Housing Unit with multicoloured streets, an unusual cone-shaped church, a UNESCO-listed concave House of Culture, an amphitheatre-style stadium and a swimming pool. The diversity of Le Corbusier in all its grandeur : here, there's an anecdote to be told on every corner. For instance, this site is his second-biggest creation in the world! More astonishing still : the windows of the House of Culture are musical. Come and take a look around for a lesson in creativity. Once you're back in Saint-Étienne, make sure you go on a tour of the city, taking in the Mining Museum, the Museum of Modern and Contemporary Art, the Art & Industry Museum or the Museum of 'Les Verts' inside the Geoffroy-Guichard Stadium.

SAINT-ÉTIENNE Base Camp for Australia

Saint-Étienne, a city with sport coursing through its veins, is delighted to be meeting the champions: Australia!

Stunning nature just a stone's throw from the city

10 minutes from Saint-Étienne's city-centre, discover 700 square kilometres of mountains and forests : the Pilat. Enjoy a change of scenery on the highest summit of this regional Natural Park, which stands 1400 metres tall. There's no shortage of activities to try : snow-shoes, cani-rando (taking a walk while tethered to a dog) or off road scooters, and, for the most adventurous types, a via ferrata climbing route or some paragliding. The centuries-old stones of the medieval château of Rochetaillée play host to visitors taking a break from a walk or cycle-ride. The walk to the Gouffre d'Enfer will reveal plenty of natural beauty - this is where the Stéphanois go for their Sunday strolls...

The Pilat also serves as the backdrop for one of the Most Beautiful Villages in France : Sainte-Croix-en-Jarez, a former monastery dating from the 14th century that is now a village. It welcomes visitors and families amid a friendly, neighbourly atmosphere, in the midst of a historic site that is well worth making a detour to.

AUVERGNE-RHÔNE-ALPS

A PASS FROM ONE CHAIN OF MOUNTAINS TO ANOTHER

The Auvergne-Rhône-Alps region offers a wide range of destinations : with the Alps and the Auvergne, the region is a paradise for winter sports and outdoor summer activities such as mountain-biking or hiking. The area has hosted the Olympic Games on three occasions : Chamonix in 1924, Grenoble in 1968 and Albertville in 1992. The way of life fostered here is one that is sociable and open to the natural world : it's all about fresh air and thrilling sensations. Mont Blanc, the 'roof of Europe', dominates the Alps and the countryside, while the volcanos of Auvergne, classed as a UNESCO world heritage site, are stunning both for those who love powerful sensations and those who prefer quiet contemplation. The journey doesn't end there, though : you can also explore the Vallée de la Gastronomie – France® which offers a culinary trek and a whirlwind ride for the senses, from the Beaujolais Wines Route to the Drôme provençale and its lavender aromas. You can also marvel at the towns and villages of the region : Vichy, Evian-les-bains, Pérouges and Annecy are a delight for visitors.

The region unveils the charm of the following towns and villages. For starters, there's Pérouges, a medieval town a few kilometres from Lyon. Looking like something straight out of a movie, it has been awarded the title of Most Beautiful Village of France. In Auvergne, Vichy has some seductive Belle Époque architecture, along with the charms of its thermal springs ; the queen of spa towns, it has been classed as a UNESCO world heritage site since 2021. Another spa town to explore : Evian-les-Bains, where you can enjoy the fresh air and typical way of life in the French mountains. The same is true of Annecy, the superb Venice of the Alps : with its historic monuments, canals and famous lake, in and around its alleyways or beneath its medieval arcades, the old city of Annecy invites you to take a wander down the corridors of time.

Marseilles

A converted try

Marseilles is the oldest city in France, but also one of the ones most closely aligned with the modern era, since it advocates a way of life that's sporty, sustainable and authentic!

Marseilles holds out its many different faces to visitors, the faces that constitute plenty of journeys to make when you're walking around the city. Here, there's the Panier, a historic district with an Italian feel to it ; over there, you have the Calanques, splendid coves and turquoise waters beside the Mediterranean ; further out, there's the Mucem, witness of the European Capital of Culture in 2013.

Be charmed by its traditional boutique stores, selling soap, navette cakes, olive oil and pastis, but also by its gastronomy, straightforward and generous like Marseilles itself.

A soap with magic properties

Marseilles' soap originates from the soap made in Aleppo, Syria, for thousands of years. The popularity of the Phoenician city's soap can be put down to the manufacturing process used for it, involving olive oil : its natural side and the fact that it's good for both the skin and for fabrics explains its appeal to people down the ages. The machines, motions and know-how have remained unchanged for over a hundred years, thus bringing the whole world a high-quality soap of great renown.

The charm of old Marseilles

Le Panier is the oldest district in France ; it was here that it all began 26 centuries ago... Plunge into the heart of this irresistible city by going for a quiet wander along its straight streets and drinking in the sociable vibe and pleasant ambience that reign supreme here. Small café terraces, façades with coloured street-art, art and craft shops, delightful little streets... This district really is like an open-air museum. While you'll need to be in fairly good physical shape to get up and down the stairs, your effort will be amply rewarded by the Mediterranean spontaneity of the locals in this popular district and by some trips out onto the deep blue sea.

Calanques, yoga and crustaceans

The Calanques mountain range is a miracle of nature tucked away between Marseilles and Cassis. With the pebbles and soft sand of its beaches, small coves and turquoise water, this jewellery case of biodiversity looks like something straight out of a picture postcard. It's the perfect place to enjoy some sunshine, do some yoga by the sea, explore the ocean floor, or throw yourself into a water-sport, such as kayaking. Whether it's hiking you're after, or simply a chance to enjoy the natural landscape and clean water, this remarkable spot has just what you need.

GETAWAY

PROVENCE-ALPS-CÔTE D'AZUR

A LUMINOUS OPENING

The Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur region is set to play a key role during the Rugby World Cup, with 10 of the 48 matches, including two quarter-finals, taking place here. Over half a million fans are expected to attend, along with hundreds of journalists from 175 countries.

Housing as it does two iconic stadiums - one in Nice-Côte d'Azur and one in Marseille-Provence, the region looks set to provide a stunning backdrop for the 2023 Rugby World Cup. Nice, where the Scotland team will be based, is going to host four matches, with six games being played in Marseilles, including two quarter-finals. Located close by one another, the two host cities are connected to the whole world thanks to their international airports, and offer vast regional public transport networks. The region has a lot to offer fans attending the world cup : first and foremost Toulon, a place where rugby has long been worshipped and the base for the South African team at the tournament. But there's also Aix-en-Provence, with its new ultra-modern campus dedicated to rugby. On the Côte d'Azur, Antibes Juan-les-Pins, a town where sport is king and where water-skiing was invented 90 years ago! Or there's Luberon, in the heart of Provence : a veritable paradise for slow tourism, just a few kilometres from the base camp that will play host to Uruguay.

Mediterranean culture, from field to plate

Whether laid out under a sunny sky or tucked away inside the food halls, the local markets are a real treat for the eyes and the taste buds. The most famous ones are in Nice, Embrun, Avignon, Toulon and Saint-Rémy-de-Provence. At the stalls you'll find fresh garden herbs, sun-kissed fruit, freshly-cooked vegetables and cheeses from local farms. Tourton pastry parcels, pissaladières flatbreads and other regional specialities brighten up the apéritifs at happy hour with their aromatic flavours. Not forgetting, of course, the region's wines, which offer a range of prestigious appellations and secret vineyards (known as confidentielles), created with native grape varieties. Rosé was born on this land and Provence dedicates 90% of its production to this iconic pink elixir with all its connotations of summer.

Art old and new under the sun

In the South, art takes pride of place, regardless of the period it comes from. You can go back in time at the Cosquer cave with its wood charcoal paintings that date back over 30,000 years, or by visiting the stone sculptures of the Vallée des Merveilles (Valley of Wonders), which are 5000 years old. The region has inspired and seduced artists since time immemorial : Van Gogh, Picasso, Cézanne, Matisse and Chagall have all been captivated by the incomparable light and infinite colour palette of the scenery here. Vineyards, remarkable gardens and private foundations invite visitors to contemplate works by famous names from the contemporary scene, from Jaume Plensa to Louise Bourgeois. Every year, new works of street art adorn the districts of Nice, Toulon and Marseilles, and people pour in from all over the world to admire the Maison de celle qui peint (the Painter's House), by Roquevaire, with its ceramic decorations, or Le Corbusier's Maison du fou (The Madman's House) - a UNESCO world heritage site.

PRE-MATCH

The fun-loving spirit of the south-west

An exceptional heritage, an abundance of culture and a joyful temperament : this is the subtle cocktail of art de vivre ('art of living') and heritage that exists in this beautiful southern city. Gastronomy occupies an important place in the Occitania region ; proof of this lies in the great variety of regional products that can be found on restaurant menus or at market stalls. Gorge yourself on cheeses from the Pyrenees, cured meats from the region, labelled meats, and, above all, magnificent sun-kissed fruit and veg that is grown locally in the most natural way possible. Top it all off with a tour of a wine cellar led by a caviste (literally a 'cellarman'), to sample the region's best tipples.

OCCITANIA

UPHEAVALS AND LANDSCAPES

Occitania has a remarkable variety of landscapes : the sea, the mountains, the city and the countryside, and visitors can move from one backdrop to another in just a couple of hours. The best way to explore this loveable region is to do so in slow mode, so that you can take in all the nuances of the landscape and drink in the rich local culture. In Occitania, art of living, sociability and a sense of hospitality are not vain aspirations. The locals are known for their accent, their love of partying and their great sense of humour, and you'll enjoy the beauty around you as much as the local joie de vivre. Occitania is France's leading region in terms of the number of beaches and ports with the Pavillon Bleu ('Blue Pavilion') label, so you need have no qualms about going for a dip at one of the region's vast beaches. Discover the beauty of the seaside, then fall for the authenticity of the fishing ports and villages. And how about the mountains? In the south are the imposing Pyrenees, at more than 3000 metres above sea level, while in the east and north the magnificent scenery of the Massif central unveils itself, with the Au-brac and the Cévennes, whose peaks stand at between 1000 and 1500 metres above sea level.
